Cookies & Similar Technologies

We and our partners use various technologies to collect and store information when you visit one of our Sites or use our mobile apps, and this may include using cookies or similar technologies to identify your browser or device. We also use these technologies to collect and store personal identifiers (such as your IP address), Internet or other electronic network activity information (such as your browser characteristics, device IDs and characteristics, operating system version, and language preferences) and information concerning your usage of our Sites (including the link you used to reach a given webpage) when you interact with our Site or services from our partners, such as advertising services from our third-party advertising and analytics partner Google Analytics and similar partners. Please see our Cookie Notice for more details.

The technologies we use for this automatic data collection may include:

* Cookies. A cookie is a small file placed on the hard drive of your computer. You may refuse to accept browser cookies by activating the appropriate setting on your browser. Unless you have adjusted your browser setting so that it will refuse cookies, our system will issue cookies when you direct your browser to our services.

* Web Beacons. Pages of our services or our e-mails may contain small electronic files known as web beacons (also referred to as clear GIFs, pixel tags and single-pixel GIFs) that permit us, for example, to count users who have visited those pages or opened an e-mail and for other related website statistics (for example, recording the popularity of certain website content and verifying system and server integrity).

We can then develop statistics that help us understand how our visitors use our Site and mobile apps and how to improve them. We may also use the information we obtain about you in other ways for which we provide specific notice at the time of collection.

However, some third-party sites do keep track of your browsing activities when they serve you content, which enables them to tailor what they present to you. If you are visiting such sites, your browser may include controls to block and delete cookies, web beacons and similar technologies, to allow you to opt-out of data collection through those technologies.
